Fighting the good fight means more than just finishing strong. It means taking a first step, and misstep. It means finding - and thanking - God in all things. Sharing a laugh along the way with old friends and new ones. It means giving it your all when you've got no more to give. It's thanking the family that helped you get there. And remembering to love through thick and thin. Because to fight the good fight, means to fight Blue and White. So to the future I say, I fight on!
