

Justine Therese R.
Malabanan

MINOR IN INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS

There is beauty in transience. Though the infamous buildings will always remain, the unique combination of people who I've chanced upon in campus, be it a block mate, an org mate, a teacher, or even a classmate for one semester, can only happen once in a lifetime. I am the product of an intersection of laughter-filled lunches, frill free trips, deep conversations, and cram nights. Ateneo was once simply my dream school. Little did I know, it'd mold me and create doors for me to reach my dreams.

Natasha Mae Kourtney D.
Ong

MINOR IN FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT

Creating - perhaps our most important skill, yet the most underrated at the same time. In Ateneo, we were always creating - papers, presentations, reports, and ideas. However, we were also creating so much more than we were aware of. We created feelings, memories, and experiences, whether good or bad, and whether we wanted to or not. All of these helped us create the most important thing: a new sense of ourselves. With this, we step out of Ateneo still continuing to do the same thing: creating.