It was only once a dream to be called an Atenean. As this dream of mine came true, I have learned to endure the struggles and celebrate victories that came with it. I discovered how to strive for the best while still keeping my values intact. Now, as I go down the hill, I carry with me all the joys and tears, the friends who became family, and the life lessons inside and outside the classroom. Thank you, Ateneo, not only for fulfilling my dream, but for also making me dream even bigger.

My time in the Ateneo changed my perspective. I've learned so much, met new people, and immersed myself in new experiences. The last 4 years have humbled me and opened my eyes to a world no one can fully grasp or understand. As I go down the hill, I know that the real world outside will be another challenge, but my mindset will never change. I will continue to learn and do new things, enriching myself in the world's beauty. As JSB Morse said, "I've learned far too much to know everything."
