“The journey of a thousand miles begins with a single step.” (Lao Tzu)
I randomly used this quote for my write-up back in high school. It didn’t matter to me then; but now, it seems quite fitting.

So thank you, Ateneo, for every step that you let me take—the endless pacing, running, and crawling towards deadlines. Each prideful stride, each wary tread.

Thank you for all the beautiful people that I have met.

But all great journeys must come to an end, and man, do I enjoy the view.

One of the many things the past few years has taught me is this—the journey isn’t about how you start or how you finish. It’s about the little steps you take each day that make the journey worthwhile.
