

Juan Mari G. De Leon

People may know Mari as funny and easygoing—always cracking jokes and making witty comebacks. But in his 4-year journey in Ateneo, Mari has grown, while remaining the same, into a caring, loving, and responsible person. He has an undeniable ability to put smiles on people's faces, especially on those he loves, even though he doesn't explicitly show it. From all the sleepless nights to all the early mornings, Mari, clasp on the morrow, has remained sound and unscathed.

Clarise Teresa Emmanuelle
J. De Ramos

MINOR IN DEVELOPMENT MANAGEMENT, GLOBAL POLITICS

College, from the very beginning, has been a series of spontaneous events, a learning experience filled with hits and misses. So here's to the adventures, big and small, to the mishaps and happy accidents, to the triumphs and the yet to be conquered. It all turned out to be better than what I had originally planned for myself. I suppose my main take away from it all is to just be the best you that you can be in any given situation and be ready for the opportunities to come.