"We're gonna make you indestructible. But first, we're gonna have to destroy you." (X-Men Origins: Wolverine)

I was an eager freshie excited to have a taste of college. Smacked with a laundry list of requirements & crushing pressure of deadlines, I found that college wasn't all sunshine & bonfires. In the wake of caffeine-induced chaos, I found my rhythm. Under pressure I became resilient & graceful. I discovered me - a young woman who has the courage to dream and go after those dreams.

Nelson Mandela once said, "A winner is a dreamer who never gives up." These past four years have been one hell of a ride for me. From the countless sleepless nights to the nerve-racking oral exams and defenses, to the never-ending group meetings and presentations, and especially to the I-just-can't-wait-to-graduate moments. I'm finally here. I made it to the finish line. I wouldn't have asked for a better ending. Thank you, Ateneo, for this opportunity and for this One Big Fight.
