Four years can last forever, and for me, that's not a bad thing.

Mike's great at doing this thing. Through thick and thin, Mike has kept at this thing and he's excelled, even against the face of seemingly insurmountable odds. I think what makes him great at it is he always keeps at it no matter how hard it gets, and he always pushes to succeed in this thing. Did you think the thing was a) studying, b) judo, c) landi, or d) being a good person? 'cause all of those apply at the same time. I don't get how he manages, but I guess that's what makes him amazing.
