Coming to Ateneo, I thought I was saying goodbye to a lot of things that were familiar to me. But my college journey made me realize that I still had all of those. A mishmash of fast-food chain runs and home-cooked meals during weekends, tricycle rides to school and car rides home, making new college friends, reunions with high school friends, and people who continue to support and inspire. The memories I made here reminded me that I never left home. Ateneo is home.

Let go and and don't be afraid to say yes. I entered Ateneo as this shy girl who was too afraid to take chances. After four years, with the support of my family, teammates, and friends, I was able to grab loads of opportunities that I would never have imagined. To my future self, continue to say yes, explore the world, fall in love, and stay happy.
