If there's a deadline fast approaching and the dorm wifi is proving useless, you'd probably find Rando burning the midnight oil somewhere in Kostka extension, fountain pen in hand. His motto for survival is: "I can do more with less." In the face of stress, he seems to always find the bright side of everything. He's always the one to ask how YOU are, and he will do everything he can until you're okay. He is the epitome of brightness, and I thank God for that light. (E. Raypon)
