

Federico Stefan Q. Pua

In the flurry that's senior year, Fed's my fiercest friend. He reminds me that it isn't a crime to take breaks and enjoy unplanned culture trips won't hurt the schedule. From late nights coming from Old Manila, to afternoons with art books and puppies, moments with Fed are most colorful. He's the best at dreaming and reaching them; there's no one else who made me realize that life is so much more than work. Play matters and in two words, Fed's company is this—real and vivid. (A. Tuico)

Kimberly K. Que

"There was only present, and it was infinite. The past and the future were just blinders we wore so that infinity wouldn't drive us mad." (L. Taylor)
