

Francesca Camille D. Delos
Reyes

I entered college with one, big heart. I was tested and pushed beyond my limits. I met people who stayed, and those whom I wish did. I had to fall a lot of times before learning how to get back up. I faced challenges that broke me and left my heart shattered.

Looking back, I now understand that my heart had to shatter for me to give them out; for me to be able to give more love to more people. Ateneo, thank you for shattering my heart, and teaching me how to love – deeper, fuller, and braver.

Glory Ann Carmel T. Dizon

Being around Yca means being alive – truly alive.

This fearless girl's zest for adventure springs not from haught, but from a genuine curiosity: a childlike amazement at the vastness of all that there is. She soaks in all that she can about the world she admires so dearly and radiates the awe she has for it for everyone and everything around her to feel.

Each ocean, jungle and mountain is waiting excitedly to be loved by this girl.

Yca is inlove with the world and it certainly loves her back.