

Rafael Iñigo L. De Vera

There are souls you chance upon in life whose main purpose is to teach; they may come and leave just as quickly as they came. But there are also those who you are destined to grow with for as long as life permits, and I thank God that I've found one in the likes of Ringo De Vera. The people lucky enough to deserve his love and unrelenting care will never know a dull day. He isn't afraid to give more than he receives, and to listen more than he should. THANK YOU GOD FOR RINGO DE VERA! (G. Berino)

"The great moments of your life won't necessarily be the things you do, they'll also be the things that happen to you." (How I Met Your Mother)
All the friends made, the laughs, the tears, the fights, the late-night conversations and study sessions, the enlistment stress, the last-minute grade calculations, the long walks along Katipunan, and all the countless, nameless experiences in between. I'm very grateful to have had these things happen to me. It's been real, Ateneo!
