

Benjamin Miguel G. Alvero III

“Conversion to the people requires a profound rebirth. Those who undergo it must take on a new form of existence; they can no longer remain as they were. Only through comradeship with the oppressed can the converts understand their characteristic ways of living and behaving, which in diverse moments reflect the structure of domination.” (P. Freire, Pedagogy of the Oppressed)

Darryl Lance M. Bañez

MINOR IN JAPANESE STUDIES

Lance is one of the most earnest people you'll meet. Despite his shyness, he's extremely considerate of his friends. He's always busy; you'll probably see him just passing by while he makes his way to and from places. He's kind, diligent and has so much potential as he continues his studies. His inquisitive and reflective nature makes him very engaging. Lance never stops learning, whether inside or outside campus, and is truly one of the brightest people you will have the pleasure of knowing.
