Regardless of where my path takes me, I'll be forever grateful for my friends for being with me on my journey, for in the end, when all lessons are forgotten, and time erases the traces of the past, what I'll remember are those little moments with my friends. Though they may have felt insignificant at the time, these are the moments we carry with us as we move forward. To Ateneo: as I write this I am cramming another requirement. Thank you for teaching me the art of cramming.
