To my future self: so no one told you life was gonna be this way. But remember Ateneo? Every week in your dream school turned out to be a nightmare. It demanded, pushed, and pulled - until it built you to become the woman you never thought you needed to be. You got to know God better as you got through what you never could have alone. To my friends, you are my fresh inhale, my feet on solid ground, and my favorite discovery. Let's bond over our shared arsenal of random Plato references sometime.
