“Always go too far, because that’s where you’ll find the truth.” (Albert Camus)

“Tolerance does not signify a genuine being with the Other, for in tolerance we have found the ungovernable Other a place in a world of the same. It is about making space by displacing ourselves, giving up our space at the center. It is the opening of our world to the Other without enclosing the Other in our order, our home.”

(A. Rodriguez, Governing the Other)
