

Camille T. Chua

Change was something I've always been wary about growing up, but in my four years in the Ateneo, I've learnt that change is a friend, and like a friend, it must be welcomed with open arms. It is in embracing new opportunities and challenges that we are able to better ourselves—going outside our comfort zones and seeing things in new perspectives. Ultimately, I have learned that life truly opens up once we ourselves do.

Kent Dominic R. Collado

"Tuesday. Another coding day comes around which means I enter and leave school with almost no one in it. Dull as it may seem, this was rarely the case because of Kent. He makes time feel like a breeze with all the laughs and experiences we've had. It's all natural for him. He gives his time, energy, and heart to others up to a fault, and this kind of love is almost always is underappreciated and unnoticed. To describe Kent as selfless is an understatement as he is so much more." (R. De Vera)
