MINOR IN DECISION SCIENCE

Coming into college, I was full of arrogance, delusions, and lofty goals. It stripped me of all of those right from the start. College gave me a clean slate, which I dirtied, stained, and broke many times over. It wasn't a perfect slate. It wasn't as shiny, nor as enormous as those of my peers, but it was mine and I loved it. Truly grateful for this school that helped me grow into a man, everyone who helped me on my journey, and for my Wi-Fi for allowing me to submit this right before 11:59.
