

Joan Eunice Y. Lao

I didn't expect to move out of the desert and into this country for school at the age of fifteen. I didn't expect to find a career here, as a budding artist, in a place so far from my hometown. I didn't expect to find out that I was a Third Culture Kid; that my identity would largely inform my calling and advocacy. Moreover, I didn't expect to meet people I grew to love and people I loved to grow with. I didn't expect leaving to be difficult either, but here I am. Here, I am home.
