

Renz Philippe C. Uy

MINOR IN DEVELOPMENT MANAGEMENT

I've never felt more uncertain about anything throughout my life. However, twenty-one years of existence has taught me that life is indeed filled with uncertainty and surprises, and there's really nothing we can do about it. Sometimes we just have to simply trust in His plan because we may not understand nor realize it now, but things will eventually fall into place — where and when they need to be.

Hannah Angela G. Valenzona

I never wanted to leave for Ateneo. It entailed saying goodbye to home and trying to find who I was in the absolute uncertain. However, Ateneo made me realize that I had to leave. Leaving came with meeting passionate souls that gave me pieces of their world, with meeting tarnished spirits who have had enough of the world's beatings and finding comfort in each other. Leaving led to being with other people. It was in leaving that I found myself: a me among the we.