

Patricia Melissa L. Abaquita

MINOR IN MANAGEMENT

Several all-nighters, countless meetings, and endless why-is-this-happening-to-me moments later, and here we are. Somewhere along the way, I fell in love with bringing projects to life even though it was another point in my never ending to-do list. The last four years showed me how far I can and will go for the things I am truly passionate about. While I am uncertain on what lies ahead of me as I make my way down the hill, I am sure of this: I will let my passions light the way.

Judith Francesca M. Acosta

Where does one begin about such an ambitious, caring, and talented individual? Perhaps one can try to understand her in her studies: hardworking, diligent, and intelligent. She conducts herself with a resolve for excellence, never compromising her work for anything else. Outside the classroom, she is a perceptive, considerate and understanding individual who cares deeply about her friends and family. Her social nature gives her the drive to connect with people and enjoy time with good company.