"Life's short. Anything could happen, and it usually does, so there's no point in sitting around thinking about all the ifs, ands, and buts." (Amy Winehouse)

Sometimes it takes you years to find something that's just right under your nose. I always thought that Ateneo was just another school that I need to get by; I was meant for something greater. But after a few years of staying here, I realized that the greatness that I yearned was already walking with me in the same pavement. Ateneo taught me another way to look at people for what they are: a way that goes beyond my reasoning and intuition. I'll keep this lesson to heart as I go down the hill.
