

Rana Sophia D. Trono

God, community & org life, friends, coffee, my lunchbox, and those spontaneous food adventures.

As I look back on all my experiences, from failing a major to actually getting a couple of A's, I always had those little blessings to keep me grounded, sane, and a little human. I hope that when my future self reads this at whatever point in time, I'd still try to be like the Rana in college who always tried to do her best and find joy in the little things. Go, future self!
