I crammed this write-up. Doing it never feels right, yet in those few moments of forced genius, you might squeeze something worthwhile. There are things that I regret doing in Ateneo; the moping alone, the fear of going out there in my first few years. Yet as I arrive closer to my slow walk towards the graduation stage, I look back and see my area kids' smiles, my friends' unwavering support, and Ateneo telling me to do more and that I can be more. In the end, I'd give my whole experience an A.
