

Noelle Jiyana M. Singson

It wasn't an easy journey for a small town girl in a big city to prove herself that she can finish strong and that she belongs. Ateneo didn't make me feel less insecure, but it taught me that I can do something about it. Now, I'm both a survivor and a fighter. I finally realized I'm stronger than I thought I was, and I finally see tomorrow's uncertainty as a creative possibility. Thank you to all the people who made this bittersweet journey worth it. Thank you, Ateneo, I'm ready for life!

Karen Mae P. Sto. Domingo

This journey has been about having faith in wherever God takes me. Each decision, risky or not, brought me to great explorations I never imagined I'd have—from sharing moments with people least expected to valuing both victory and failure in the same way. Here, I was taught how to listen, love, and live better. To those who made all of this possible: thank you. It's been quite a ride from the waitlist, and I'm sure it doesn't end here. Until next time, Ateneo! By His grace and for His glory.