The past four years have felt like climbing up a mountain and now I've finally reached its peak. Thank you Ateneo and to all the people I've met along the way. You've taught me to go beyond the boundaries I set for myself and I will always be grateful.

As far as stepping stones go, I'd like to think I chose well, coming here. But now, I have no idea what to do, for so many possibilities lie ahead. The thought is as beautiful as it is frustrating, for it is the best course I could ever find myself following, better even than what I imagined for myself when I first set foot here. I thought I would leave with mere accomplishment. Instead I leave with a challenge, and I can't wait.
