

Casey Devlin O. Dionisio

To love. To love waking up in the morning despite a sleepless night of studying. To love walking to class despite the rain. To love challenging yourself despite the uncertainties. To love learning despite the woes of failing. To love those around you despite their criticisms. To love opening up despite the vulnerability. To love yourself despite your shortcomings. Thank you Ateneo, for teaching me how to love. And to the Broskis, thank you for helping me keep the love each day.

Dominique Anais T. Domingo

This journey wasn't easy. Not even close.
It was one filled with tears, laughter, and coffee.
Lots of coffee. Lots of laughter.
And a few extra tears.
But faith, strength, will, and hope,
allowed her to fly high and conquer.
Now she's off to the next chapter,
with God right beside her.
And her family at the other.