MINOR IN SUSTAINABILITY

Life for me remains to be walking on a path towards something greater. Ateneo taught me that we walk, run, and crawl to reach our goal. Sometimes, we can sit and allow ourselves to watch the sky. As we voyage, we make lasting relationships each step of the way with people who cry with us in pain and laugh with us in joy.

Ultimately, I learned that there are many ways to live out our lives. We must be brave enough to see these possibilities in order to soar to greater heights.

Ein Hauch von Tüll: A touch of tulle was the way I entered, holding onto a piece of innocent hope with every step of this journey. It was the way I built my identity all these years, as I brightened people's days and faced every storm. Throughout my adventures in Ateneo, the tulle has weathered just as I have. Yet, although it seems that I am trading in my tulle for something sturdier as I go down the hill into new adventures, I am simply exchanging it for a new one.
